Johnson Prepares For Trip

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., (AP) -President Johnson boned up today for a summit journey to Central America, setting aside time, too, for some ranch-style diplomacy.

Johnson held a series of meetings with Walt W. Rostow and other foreign policy advisers in advance of his flight to El Salvador early Saturday for a conference with the presidents of the five Central American countries.

And flying directly to the Johnson ranch from New York, for an informal get together over lunch, was President Rene Barrientos of Bolivia.

Most announcements from the Texas White House were routine, but one was word that the President has signed the $4 billion authorization for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for the fiscal year that began July 1. Congress cut $357 million from Johnson's January budget re-

Johnson will leave Texas about 7 a.m. Saturday on a three-hour flight to the El Salvadorean capital of San Salvador where, for two days, he will be meeting formally and socially with the presidents of that country and Honduras, Costa Rica, Nicaragua and Guatemala.

The five Latin nations make up the seven-year-old Central American Common Market, which Johnson wants to encourage. While generally regarded as a success, the market grouping has been plagued in the past couple of years by weak world prices for two major export commodities-coffee and cotton.

Johnson is due in San Salvador about 8 a.m., local time, and will go by motorcade to the conference site in a hotel. The summit meeting is to begin promptly on his arrival, with of the documents planned for after a luncheon meeting

Mrs. Johnson and their younger daughter, Luci Johnson Nugent, will go along.

On Sunday, the Johnsons will attend Roman Catholic church services together and, after greeting the staff at the U.S. Embassy, will visit local schools before joining the other presidents and first ladies at a luncheon in an outlying national park. Johnson will be the host at an evening reception for the other

On Monday, Johnson will leave San Salvador about 8 a.m., and will make 45-minute stops during the day at airports in Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Honduras and Guatemala, in that order, dropping off the president of each country along the

The White House said it was assumed Johnson would then fly directly back to Washington Monday night. However, this was not firm.

Johnson observed an old fashioned Fourth of July in San Antonio but brought with him to Texas a work load and schedule that precluded much relaxation.

The President and First Lady flew to San Antonio Thursday and spent three hours at HemisFair where Johnson indulged in some traditional patriotic rhetoric, took in the sights and sampled a couple of rather drippy ice cream cones.

The President also issued a statement late in the day expressing deep concern over disruption by hecklers of a speaking appearance by presidential aspirant George Wallace.

Johnson today informally entertains President Rene Barrientos Ortuno of Bolivia at his ranch home. Barrientos was in Texas for Bolivia Day Saturday

Dimitroz, like the sniper, Angelo Angelof, was from Bulgaria. He told police Angelof had visited him about 10 days ago, but said he was not aware the revolver was missing until in-

University President In Warning

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)-President John C. Weaver of the University of Missouri warned today the school will not tolerate any unlawful occupation of its buildings or other interference with normal activities.

Weaver, who said his statement had the unanimous support of the nine-member Board of Curators, said any student or employe who tries to disrupt university work faces immediate suspension and risks ultimate dismissal.

The university has had no troubles of the type the president discussed, and his statement apparently was meant as a warning of consequences in event anyone is planning any demonstrations. Said Weaver:

"The University of Missouri will at all times defend the right of free expression of opinion, including the right of peaceful assembly. . . The university will not allow any unauthorized occupation of university facilities, nor will it permit any interference with its normal and regular activities.'

Weaver added the statement applies to all four university campuses - Columbia, Kansas City, St. Louis and

Reds Shoot Rockets At Big US Bombers

SAIGON (AP) — Two enemy antiaircraft missiles were fired at U.S. Air Force B52 bombers attacking North Vietnam's southern panhandle Thursday, the U.S. Command reported to-

Spokesman said none of the eight-engine bombers was hit. The B52s have been fired upon before by the Soviet-made missiles on raids in North Vietnam's southernmost section, but none ever has been hit so far in

The B52s began a massive bombing campaign Monday against enemy artillery sites and storage areas in the panhandle and the northern part of the demilitarized zone. Since then, they have flown 28 raids in

The giant bombers are considered vulnerable to the enemy high-altitude missiles. U.S. fighter-bombers-faster, smaller and lower-flying-ordinarily attack known enemy missile sites before the B52s head for the DMZ or North Vietnam, and the B52s generally try to steer clear of these sites.

The fighter-bombers attacked one missile site 13 miles above the DMZ Thursday and pilots reported their bombs touched off four fires. They flew 141 missions today against supply lines in the panhandle.

The B52s returned today to pounding enemy bases around Saigon in a massive allied campaign to head off a threatened attack on the capital. They flew five missions 28 to 30 miles northwest of Saigon.

On the ground, allied troops uncovered two more important enemy arms caches today, bringing the number found since Wednesday to five.

Maj. Gen. John J. Hay, commander of U.S. troops in the capital military district, has said the only way to prevent attacks on Saigon is to seize enemy weapons before they can be moved into firing position.

One of the latest discoveries was made by U.S. 1st Division infantrymen in a complex of five bunkers and 150 feet of tunnels 33 miles north of Saigon. The cache contained 110 bazooka-type rockets, seven rocket launchers, an 82mm mortar and 24 shells for it.

South Vietnamese infantrymen turned up a cache 180 miles northwest of Saigon which government spokesmen said contained five 100-pound Russian rockets of the type used to shell Saigon in recent weeks; 91 rounds of 75mm recoilless rifle shells and three smaller-range bazooka-type rockets.

About 30 miles northwest of Saigon, other 1st Division troops gingerly probed booby-trapped enemy bunkers where they already had found a cache of more than 35 of the big Russian 122mm rockets plus more than 1,000 bazooka-type rockets.

The cache is only 10 miles from a big U.S. base at Dau

Two other rocket caches were seized six miles east of Saigon Wednesday and Thursday. These included both 122mm rockets and Chinese 107mm rockets, which weigh about 50 pounds. In other action Thursday, U.S.

Marines suffered four killed and 13 wounded in a 40-minute engagement with about 150 North Vietnamese troops. The Marine company was covering the withdrawal from the Khe Sanh combat base when the enemy attacked with small arms, machine guns and rocket-propelled grenades. A U.S. spokesman said 17 enemy bodies were found after the battle.

South Vietnamese infantrymen reported killing 22 enemy soldiers on the eastern flank of the demilitarized zone, near Gio Linh. Spokesmen said government losses were one killed and

Hall said the country is being engulfed by a new wave represented by the "grass roots electoral revolt." He claimed the revolt had "swept Johnson out of the presidential race. In a news conference before his speech, Hall said there are Communists on most of the major campuses in this country and that they had been involved in the student protests. The party's youth leader, Mi-

Holiday Traffic Death Toll Eases Tie In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) - A lighter passenger load and improved service were reported today on Chicago's bus-elevated-subway system hit by a wildcat strike of drivers and motormen. A spokesman for the Chicago Transit Authority (CTA) termed the turnout of workers "encour-

Some office workers who went to the downtown business district by elevated-subway trains reported they had made the trip in about the normal time and had spotted empty seats. Others, who drove, saw fewer automobiles on the streets.

The major reason for the lighter passenger load and the thinner streams of automobiles was the fact that thousands of persons had the day off as part of the four-day Independence Day

The CTA spokesman said service would be better than it was Wednesday, the first full day of the walkout.

Two major taxicab companies asked their drivers to give up their days off until the strike

Leaders of the walkout met secretly with top union officials Thursday, and they were told to go back to work. The union said it would act on their complaints only when the strike ended. The demand was rejected by the strikers. CTA Chairman George L. Dement said Thursday night he was "kind of discouraged" at receiving no word of progress in resolving the dispute which interrupted service for some 600,000 commuters Wednesday.

Dement said service for the holiday operated at about 75 per cent. But he predicted today's transit problems would be as great as Wednesday

The walkout stemmed from a demand by Negro bus drivers for representation among the officers of the union. Negro drivers number more than half of the union's 8,340 members.

The traffic death toll during the long Independence Day holiday weekend passed the 200 mark today.

The total number of fatalities across the nation midway through the second day of the four-day holiday period stood at Although showers dampened parts of the Southeast and portions of the midcontinent, dry weather offered good driving conditions over most of the country for the Fourth of July and today. The National Safety Council has estimated that between 700 and 800 Americans may die in motor vehicle accidents in the weekend that began at 6 p.m. Wednesday and ends at midnight Sunday. For comparison purposes, The Associated Press made a survey of traffic deaths during a nonholiday period of the same length and counted 553 fatalities. The weekend surveyed ran from 6 p.m. Wednesday, June 19, to midnight Sunday, June 23.

Drownings and boating mishaps also accounted for a large number of accident deaths across the country Thursday.

Seven children on a holiday outing, and a man who was giving them a boatride, drowned when their 12-foot outboard flipped over in Lake Easy just south of Lake Wales, Fla. The only survivor was an 11-year-old girl who clung to the overturned boat until rescued.

Tradition Created By Churches

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

AP Religion Writer NEW YORK (AP)-American churches, sometimes accused of being revolutionary in their antiwar and civil rights activities, helped plant that tradition in this country when it was founded 192 years ago this week.

Their doctrine that God-given human rights take precedence over powers of government formed the basis of the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776.

Among the 56 signers were 34 Episcopalians, six Presbyterians, one Baptist, one Roman Catholic, one Quaker and 13 Congregationalists, some of them ministers or sons of ministers.

"They believed that God-given natural laws were above the laws of government," says historian Richard B. Morris, of Columbia University. "To break allegiance to the king, they appealed to a higher law than the king, that of God.

It was this theological justification for the American Revolution that has set it apart from most other revolutions in the world's history, and which has given a distinguishing character to American politics ever since.

The churches, in the main, supported the revolt. The three largest religious bodies in that period were Presbyterians, Congregaionalists and Episcopalians, of Anglicans, each with about a half-million members.

Presbyterian and Congregational leaders were strongly prorevolution. So were Episcopalians generally in their main regions-Virginia, Maryland and South Carolina—although clergy in New York and the Northeast opposed the revolution.

Among the smaller groups then, Baptists were strongly prorebellion. Lutherans and other German-origin churches were sharply divided, as were Catholics and Jews. Methodists were mainly loyal to the king.

Commenting on the usual July 4 celebrations, the Rev. Kenneth L. Wilson, managing editor of the Christian Herald, notes that patriotism usually is though ot 'in terms of brass bands, beating drums, marching men."

'Patriotism seems practically always to be related to war, and yet war is possibly the worst of all times for patriotism," he adds. "War subordinates everything and everyone to its purpose. It demands and usually gets instant obedience.'

He suggests a military band is not essentially more patriotic than a sympthony orchestra, or even a rock 'n' roll combo, and says it seems odds that "we have simply not memorialized peace as we have memorialized

Englshman Modest Over Solo Voyage

PORTSMOUTH, England (AP) - Alec Rose woke up today after a good sleep in a stationary bed, went back to work at his vegetable shop and dismissed his round-the-world solo voyage as a selfish project—not very important.

Lavish headlines and editorials celebrated his homecoming Thursday from his 28,500mile voyage in the 36-foot ketch Lively Lady, and the cheers of a crowd of 250,000 echoed through this historic English seaport, his hometown.

But Rose, 59, took it all as quietly as if it hardly mattered. He said he felt he had been a bit selfish—"just going off and doing something that I've always wanted to do since I was a

In 354 days at sea, Rose endured the ultimate in loneliness and stared death in the face.

Once he passed out from fumes while trying to repair the small engine which charged his batteries. "I came to in about two

Pastor's Comment

By The Rev. Thomas E. Davis Taylor Chapel Methodist

Today, the Church is facing the greatest challenges, as well as the greatest opportunities, in its existence. Some of the challenges that face the Church are the powers of darkness striving to equal or overcome the powers of Jesus. We must remember that Jesus said, in essence, that the gates of hell shall not overcome the Church. He d'd not say that these powers would not try to overcome it. He also said to His Church that, "Ye are the salt of the carth - the light of the world." The condition of the world today makes it more conceivable than ever before that the Church must maintain its saving powers and supply light for this sin-darkened world.

The Church faces a most complex situation today, and has to strive for existence as well as identity. The Church must find a way, or make one, to the very heart of these evils which are so prevalent today. This is not an easy task. It never has been easy. I am persuaded that it will never be easy, for the Church, at the direction of its founder, has dared to tackle the impossible. In the face of what we see in our world today, it is not easy to make one believe that the way of our Lord is the only way of life -. the only hope of salvation. The Church has never been questioned as it is today. The very existence of the Church is questioned, and it must answer these questions in words, in deeds and principles.

The Church must make those who are blinded by evil see the light of the gospel of Jesus. It must also make the deaf hear the word of God, and the dumb to speak the language of our Lord to a sinful world. The Church must lead people to feel a definite and personal responsibility toward one another. Jesus once said, after performing some of His miracles, "Greater works than these shall ye do, for I go to my Father.'

The Church may expect to do a great job in helping to bring about a better relationship between men. In this world of racial hatred and bitterness, the Church must come in and save man from himself, first of all, then from the wrath of God. The Church must make its way to the hearts of men with the great message of salvation, in order to replace hate with love and replace war and violence with peace. Then, and only then, can the human family across this world live in brotherhood under the Fatherhood of God our Creator.

NEW YORK (AP) — It was an odd visit. The old Russian rabbi was heckled and embraced, challenged and acclaimed. He sounded some expected views, but also some bold alarms.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The chairman of the House Republican Conference said today Richard M. Nixon can nail down a first-ballot victory at the Republican national convention with 39 more votes.

At Lease(t) Rent If You Can't Buy

In spite of the mad rush to sign up for credit and buy all kinds of 20th century goodies, the truth is that we're coming into a special era of rentals.

"Rentals," according to Robert Sheridan, president of a leader in the equipment leasing field, "are here to stay and are shaping the way we live. Growth of the business may be the most important marketing advance since the conditional sales contract. It reflects a sociological change in the U.S.'

Sheridan is an engineer originally who is described as having the heart of a salesman. He is involved in renting through A to Z Rental, Inc., is in the computer field and the manufacturing and franchising of urban rapid transit items.

As a businessman he likes to cite rental equipment for everyone as "better utilization of capital equipment." Bringing it closer to home, he points out the growing awareness of couples on the move that there is just so much space and so many items to put in it. As Sheridan says, "Couples are beginning to decide how much space they want to take up in a home storing things. The days of the all-purpose attic are over. Closets are small." The key then is for people to buy specific items and decide what others-such as punch bowls, large-size coffee makers and extra chairs-they'll need only for special occasions. Basically, it means overcoming the problem of storage, for a reasonable price.

He points out that the rental of camping equipment and campers for family vacations pinpoints what a person considers when he rents or buys. A camper, he estimates, for two adults and four children, reserved in one community and rented or used in another may cost less than $100. To buy it would be approximately $1,500.

Heavy-duty tools for home repairs and refurbishing also fit into the area of possible money saving. Sheridan explains that it is possible to rent heavy-duty professional equipment for less money in the long run than it is to buy the equivalent item and use it only once or twice a year. When renting any item, explain to the dealer, he says, what you plan to do with it. In the case of home repair equipment try to appraise the job and be realistic about the length of time you will need it. It is cheaper to rent by the week, for example, than by the

The interesting business facet, Sheridan believes, is that increased use of rental equipment does not mean fewer sales by manufacturers. Handled properly it should mean more money for everyone, especially the consumer who doesn't have to bother with repairs, insurance or storage.

Advise Queen Not to Visit In Argentina

LONDON (AP) — The British government said today it has advised Queen Elizabeth II not to visit Argentina at this time. The sovereign and her husband, Prince Philip, are scheduled to visit Brazil and Chile for 18 days beginning Nov. 1.

The Foreign Office said it had told the queen "the present is not the most appropriate time for a visit" to Argentina and added that the government had fully consulted Argentina before giving the advice.

Earlier, Buckingham Palace announced that the queen's state visit to Brazil will begin Nov. 1. She will then visit Chile from Nov. 11 to 18.

The royal decision not to visit Argentina comes at a time when Anglo-Argentine relations are under strain. The two main causes are Argentina's longstanding territorial claim to the Falkland Islands, on which secret talks have been held between the two governments, and Britain's continuing ban on Argentine imports of frozen mutton and lamb.

THE LAST AMERICAN

Came a Revolution

It always appeared a most iniquitous scheme to me to fight ourselves for what we are daily robbing and plundering from those who have as good a right to freedom

-Abigail Adams

By the middle of the 18th century, slavery was firmly established in America, legal in every colony. That the Negro was an inferior being ordained by God to serve the white man was considered as immutable a law of nature as the law of gravity.

But "Nature and Nature's God" were beginning to speak of other things to men-of certain self-evident truths, certain inalienable

Crispus Attucks, a self-liberated slave who led a mob that harassed British troops in Boston in March 1770, was the first to fall in that "Boston Massacre."

Negroes were with the Minutemen at Lexington and Concord in April 1775. Negroes participated in Ethan Allen's capture of Ft. Ticonderoga in May. Two Negroes, Peter Salem and Salem Poor, were outstanding heroes at the Battle of Bunker Hill in June.

Then, taking command of the Army and fearing that Negroes might point their muskets in the wrong direction, George Washington issued an order barring them. The Continental Congress passed a confirming resolution.

But a proclamation by the royal governor of Virginia promising freedom for Negroes who joined the British alarmed the colonists. In January 1776, Congress authorized the enlistment of free Negroes. By the time the American cause had reached its lowest point, at Valley Forge in 1777, both slave and free Negroes were welcomed.

In all, some 5,000 of them fought in the Revolution, on land and sea and in nearly every battle, most of them in integrated units.

The spirit of liberty was infectious. Tens of thousands of slaves fled their masters. For a time, it seemed as if the stirring words of the Declaration of Independence about "all men" might really come to mean all men. In 1777, Vermont abolished slavery, and in the next decade most of the North followed.

But it was not to be. The darkest days of slavery in America were yet to come.

LSD Users Run Scared

If throwing a scare into the public hasn't made much of a dent in the nation's tobacco habit as yet, the tactic appears to have had sudden and dramatic effect in another area of considerable concern in health quarters.

The U.S. Bureau of Narcotics reports a sharp decline in LSD usage in the wake of revelations during the past year of the mind-bending drug's effect on human reproduction - which probably says something about survival of the race being a more telling argument than personal survival.

The bureau says the turning point came with evidence that LSD can disrupt the arrangement of chromosomes - the tiny rods in cells containing the multitudes of genes determining human development from sex to hair color and number of fingers.

The reports of medical researchers and of actual abnormal birth "scared the pants off" of many taking LSD for kicks or to be in, the bureau believes, with a resulting "substantial" usage decline in recent months.

Victory is not total. There are still many former users, primarily the collegiate set, may simply have turned to marijuana. But every little bit helps.

Newspapers, by widely reporting the game may just not be worth the scandal.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

chromosome peril, are given considerable credit for LSD's downfall.

Who says there isn't good news to report - or that reporting bad news can't have beneficial results?

'Hot Pursuit?' Cool It

Two doctors, in a report to the American Medical Association, have come out against a familiar and well-accepted police institution - "hot pursuit" of speeders and other criminals.

The doctors are members of the Physicians for Automotive Safety Committee of the AMA. They argue that most pursuit is of minor traffic offenders - but the results are massively destructive.

At least 25 per cent of such chases, they reported, end in death and 70 per cent in an accident, often serious.

"The police are really making something major out of something minor," said Dr. Seymour Charles of Newark, N.J.

To anyone using highways and streets. the sight of a police car careening in chase, with siren screaming and toplight flashing. has become almost commonplace. So, unfortunately, have become the wrecked cars, the strewn bodies and the crippling after-effects.

The doctors may have a point there. The

Weak Gesture Tackling Tax Reforms

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON WASHINGTON - Now that Congress has increased taxes, House leaders have grudgingly agreed to take up the tax reforms which could have made a tax boost unnecessary.

Speaker John McCormack, D-Mass., has promised liberals that the House Ways and Means Committee, at long last, will start hearings. Ways and Means chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., though generally opposed to closing the tax loopholes, has agreed not to oppose the hearings.

However, here is the unpublicized gimmick. After the tax reformers have presented their case, Congress will shut down without taking action. For congressional leaders have no real intention of plugging the tax loopholes.

If they are ever plugged, income taxes could be slashed instead of raised. Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J., put it bluntly during the recent tax debate: "Middle class America has carried this nation on its back for far too long. This House today should be talking about, thinking about, and acting upon a bill for fair taxes, not just more taxes.

Last year, for example, 20 major oil companies rang up a net profit of almost $5 billion while they paid net taxes averaging less than 9 per cent. In past years, the average has been closer to 4 per cent.

The giant of the industry, Standard Oil of New Jersey, collected such fabulous profits in 1966 that it was able to show a net gain of over $1 billion. This is more revenue than most nations collect. Yet the company paid only a 7.3 per cent tax, a smaller percentage than the average scrub woman pays.

From 1962 to 1967, The Atlantic Oil Corporation cleared over $340 million in profits, yet paid no taxes at all. Even more astounding. The Marathon Oil Company, despite a net profit of over $37 million in 1962, not only failed to pay any taxes that year but actually received a $2.2 million tax credit from the

-Mafia VS. Monopoly-

Sometimes one hand of the Justice Department doesn't let the other hand know what it's doing - at least in Las Vegas.

The Justice Department's antitrust division, after a long era of do-nothingism, has suddenly aroused from a comatose condition and slapped an antitrust warning on Howard Hughes against acquiring the Stardust Hotel in Las Vegas.

Simultaneously, another branch of the Justice Department, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has been applauding Howard Hughes for driving the Mafia out of his hotels in Las Vegas

The FBI has long pointed to Las Vegas as a serious hotbed for the gambling underworld. It even incurred an embarrassing lawsuit brought by Ed Levinson when the FBI was caught bugging his bedroom and other rooms in his Fremont Hotel.

Meanwhile Hughes had given a big assist to the FBI's crime cleanup when he purchased the Sands and the Desert Inn. Immediately after buying them he chased the underworld out. Anyone can now patronize the Sands and the Desert Inn without fear of being duped by the Mafia.

Four months ago. Hughes also signed a preliminary agreement to take over the Stardust, biggest hotel in Las Vegas. There was a hearing by Nevada state officials, who okayed the deal; and Hughes was preparing to sign a contract on July 1 when the other hand of the Justice Department, the antitrust division, stepped in with a warning that it might file an antitrust suit. There are a hundred or so hotels in Las Vegas, of which Hughes owns only two. Yet the Justice Department considered acquiring the third to constitute a monopoly.

Note: The antitrust division has ignored the attempt by the biggest whiskey company in the world. Seagram, to dominate one of the largest motion picture companies in the world. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

-Crime Doesn't Pay-

Meanwhile Hughes is one broadcaster who has found that you don't have to use televised crime to make profits. After he acquired KLAS-TV in Las Vegas, Hughes began featuring public service and educational programs as against crime and violence.

KLAS is now featuring the CBS college education series "Sunrise Semester." Hughes also hired Mrs. Fedora Bontempi as director of public affairs and started a daily televised "Our Town" series. It proved so popular that it now goes on both morning and evening

KLAS also inaugurated "The Religious Dialogue." a recreation directory giving recreation facilities available in southern Nevada, and the "Council of Social Agencies" in which local citizens discuss such problems as juvenile delinquency and gun control. KLAS producers have been meeting with officials of Nevada Southern University and Clark country schools in order to start an educational program in July.

Local response has been excellent. Viewers seem more interested in educational and community problems than televised crime.

-San Francisco's La Guardia-

Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco is becoming the modern-day Fiorello La Guardia, the little Italian mayor who once ruled New York.

The other day, Alioto, a Catholic, was attending a banquet given by the National Conference of Christians and Jews in San Francisco.

"I've been raised in the shadow of the synagogue across the street from me, and my parish priest has been Rabbi Fine," he said. "Every week I light a candle in the synagogue, and Cyril Magnin lights a candle in my cathedral.

"I suspect that these two candles are the best lighted of any in the city. Cyril Magnin, to whom Mayor Aliote referred, is one of the big Jewish merchants in San Francisco. Alioto is a Democrat who is now getting a lot of Republican support.

When an expert stops to think over a play of the hand you can be sure of two things. The first is that he has something to think about, and the second is that he will probably solve his problem. When an ordinary player stops to think you can be equally sure that he has something to think about but you can't always be sure he will solve his problem.

There is nothing wrong with the North-South bidding. South has almost enough to open with a forcing two bid and can certainly afford to go to a slam after North jumps to game.

The slam also is one that will make. Unless all three trumps show up in one hand there is no defense. Even with all trumps in one hand, South makes his contract if he guesses which opponent will hold the queen.

The play starts with West opening his ace of clubs and continuing the suit. South is in with the king and right here is where South should take a little time to decide whether to lead the ace or a low spade.

An expert would surely lead the ace of spades. He would note that West had a club suit headed by the ace but had not got into the bidding against vulnerable opponents. That might indicate to some players that he did not also hold the queen of spades but to an expert it would indicate that West would be most unlikely to hold no spades at all. People try to get into the bidding when they are not vulnerable and when they think they don't have much defense. The queen of an opponent's bid suit represents possible defense. No cards in an opponent's bid suit represents a possible cheap save.

Therefore the expert would lead his ace of spades at trick three and pick up the queen when East showed out.

These Witty Sayings Have Teeth in Them

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

Thonrton Wilder didn't know, when he entitled his play "The Skin of Our Teeth," that teeth really do have skins! This skin, or you might say, enamel cuticle, is called Nasmyth's membrane. Don't look for it on your teeth because it's worn away shortly after teeth erupt.

The little boy asked his grandmother, "How old are you grandma?" She replied, "I'm as old as my tongue and a little older than my teeth.'

Someone said it's sheer folly to send an old man with false teeth to Vietnam peace talks when he may have to eat crow.

The toothless old chocolate general said the draft law should have more teeth in it.

Do you know what makes witches mean, and why they have only one tooth? They've been cursed by the Druids with, "One tooth should be left you and that should hurt you all the rest of your life.' In Japan, women used to identify their marital status by blackening their teeth. Maybe they were forced to do this by jealous husbands who believed that a wanton tooth is the harbinger of wantoness. Just in case you wish to make your teeth black and shiny, the formula used was a mixture of urine, iron filings and saki, and it was so potent a stain that teeth stayed black forever. Centuries ago, in England, deeds to property were apt to be sealed by teeth marks in wax followed by these words, "In proof that this is sooth, I bite the wax with my tooth.

Two Back Bay Boston women, lean, yellow and long in the tooth, were sitting in their rockers talking about their dentist. One of them said, "Dr. - is a very clever dentist but he's getting too old and can't see." The other proudly retorted, "But if you show him where the cavity is, he'll fill it.'

Featured among the ads were a color television set, a 24-hour dry-cleaning service, baby foods, guarded parking lots for private cars, summer cruises, tourist trips and rental electronic computers.

What was odd about the supplement was that it appeared in Vechernaya Moskva, a Russian Advertising in a communist newspaper? Heresy!

Ever since Lenin, advertising has been exposed as a tool of the dirty capitalists to deceive the public. Communists (as well as some strange voices in Washington) long have proclaimed advertising to be economic waste. Why increase the cost of goods by spending money on advertising?

Why the sudden change in official philosophy? In a word, the change was caused by people.

In the last decade the average Russian has begun demanding his fair share of the nation's economy more consumer goods. As the Russian statecontrolled economy strained to meet the demand. the controllers reached a startling conclusion: Competition could make more goods available to the average man than state control — goods of a better quality at a better price.

Advertising was the next logical step. Without advertising in some form, competition cannot exist. How is the average man to know which goods are of the best quality at the best price if there is no advertising?

Can we expect more change? Once the marketplace is freed by competition and advertising, the taste of freedom by the average citizen must sooner or later lead to a government of freedom.

The federal government in Lagos holds the upper hand in the fighting and has occupied large chunks of the secessionist Eastern Region-Biafra-and most of the area's major cities. Both sides would like to end the conflict that has driven the country to the edge of ruin, created millions of refugees in Biafra and killed untold numbers of Nigerians. But cease-fire negotiations in May broke down in disagreement over conditions. The Biafrans want an unconditional cease-fire and withdrawal of federal troops. Lagos wants as surances, before it withdraws its forces, that Biafra will rejoin the federation as three separate Contacts are continuing and there is a possibility new talks may begin in London.

Meanwhile, the situation in Biafra grows more and more desperate. There are an estimated 4.5-million refugees in what is left of Biafra and a generation of youngsters in the area is being crippled by protein starvation, relief officials

International relief agencies say that as many as a million Biafrans will die of starvation before the end of summer unless more food can be supplied to the Biafrans, now jammed into about 10,000 square miles of what already was the most densely populated territory of Africa.

The area is under tight blockade by the Lagos government and the federal air force of Soviet-built MIGs and Czech-made Delfins controls the air. Federal capture in May of Port Harcourt, Biafra's largest city and its main depot for airlifted supplies, tightened the ring on Biaf-

Lt. Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu, the secessionist leader, vowed at the time the Biafrans would maintain guerrilla operations from the back country.

In June, Biafra began broadcasting appeals for massive relief shipments and said refugees were dying by the thousands.

Wheat Types Blacklisted By Government

WASHINGTON (AP) - Fourteen varieties of wheat were blacklisted under the government's price support program for 1969 because of inferior milling or baking qualities, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

As a consequence, the blacklisted varieites will not be eligible for premium payments. Each will be discounted 20 cents a bushel in the price support loan and purchase rate for next year.

Those listed by the department are:

does not want the aid passed through federal hands.

But in New York this week, a federal spokesman said: "All ports and major airports are in federal hands so it is impossible to channel supplies to Biafran refugees without going through federal authorities.

Chief Anthony Enahoro, negotiator for the federal government, said of reports that millions of Biafrans will starve in the next few months, "It is quite clear they are attempting to exploit the sympathies of the outside world for the purpose of their military interests.'

"There is an attempt to blame us for the effects of the war," said Enahoro. "The quickest way to stop all this is for them to stop secession.

He said the federal government has left open avenues for supplies to reach Biafra and has offered trucks to move relief supplies. "But the rebels say, oh, no. What they want is an unconditional cease-fire.

He blamed Biafra for delays in reaching a cease-fire.

Cities Are Adopting Gun Control Codes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several of the nation's biggest cities have gun control laws and more cities and towns are considering them. But advocates of local laws are quick to point out they cannot be fully effective without interstate sales restric-

The city council of Washington this week gave tentative approval to an ordinance requiring licensing of pistols, rifles and shotguns and permits for carrying them. It is similar to one recommended by the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments which includes 45 cities and counties.

Several cities, including New Haven, Conn. and San Antonio, Tex., have indicated thei interest in city gun laws, the National League of Cities says. It notes that New York, Chicago and Philadelphia already have enacted strict gun control laws. One has been proposed in St.

The league has started working on a model gun control ordinance and plans to meet with state attorneys general to draft complementary state and local

The executive committee of the league last May called for federal regulations to keep firearms out of the hands of those likely to misuse them.

It said that local ordinances were relatively ineffective "because of the ease with which firearms may be acquired in other jurisdictions and through

The omnibus crime control bill signed recently by President Johnson bans mail order sales of pistols. Both the House and Senate Judiciary committees have before them bills that would ban the mail order sales of rifles and shotguns.

The President also has asked for a law requiring registration of weapons and licensing of owners. The question of whether this proposal should be tacked onto the long-gun measure was considered by the Senate Judiciary Committee last Thursday, but the committee postponed any action until next week.

Statistics on the effectiveness of city ordinances are meager, and there are arguments about the figures that are available. In the case of the Philadelphia law, enacted in 1965, the March issue of the magazine of the league, "Nation's Cities," said: 'Although there's no available statistical data to indicate that the law has reduced gun-related crime, a Philadelphia police spokesman said he felt it has helped and "has kept guns out of the hands of irresponsibles."

The annual uniform crime report of the FBI lists homicides in the major metropolitan areas and the rate per 100,000 persons but does not say what percentage of the homicides in each city was by guns.

New York City, under a strict state regulation on hand guns, also has a new local law requiring registration of rifles and shotguns.

In testimony before Congress recently, Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York said that of 746 murders in his city last year, 235, or less than one-third, were committed with firearms.

In its latest figures, for 1966, the FBI said 60 per cent of the murders in the United States was by firearms.

Also in testimony before Congress, Harold W. Glassen, president of the National Rifle Association of America, said that in 1966, 2.85 per cent of all serious crime, including robberies, in New York City was committed with the aid of firearms. Unlicensed handguns, he said, accounted for 87.16 per cent of the firearms crimes. This is proof, he said, that criminals will not abide by the law.

Acceptable

To Nasser

Associated Press Writer Senior diplomats say Egypt has offered to take back a United Nations peacekeeping force on its soil as part of an Arab-Israeli settlement, but meanwhile a boost in Egyptian military spending was reported in Cairo.

Diplomats in London said the readiness of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser to restore a U.N. peace force under some guaranteed form of tenure has been conveyed to the mission of U.N. envoy Gunnar Jarring.

It was deemed a hopeful development because Nasser's expulsion of U.N. troops was a major factor in the train of events that led to the six-day Middle East war of June 1967.

Efforts toward a settlement have been stymied by Israel's refusal to give back captured Arab lands without direct neg tiations with the Arabs, and the Arabs' refusal to meet face-toface with the Israelis. The United Nations has called for Israel to withdraw from captured territory and for the Arabs to end their belligerency toward Israel.

Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart told newsmen Thursday prospects for progress in the Middle East seem better.

One encouraging development, he said, was a statement attributed to Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad that 'we recognize realities and Israel is one of them. Now we want peace. But the Egyptian government. in announcing a $4.6-billion budget Thursday, said it was geared mainly to "sacrifices to enhance military expenditure and to liberate Arab lands occupied by Israel. No defense figures were disclosed, but semiofficial sources said this year's defense appropriation is the highest in Egyptian history.

A special $293.25-million emergency fund was created to consolidate the armed forces and popular resistance against the Israeli occupation of the Egyptian Sinai peninsula and the east bank of the Suez Canal.

The fund would be raised largely as contributions from Arab oil states, donations from private citizens and a civil defense tax.

Nasser conferred for the second day today with Soviet leaders in Moscow, and observers said that the visit could provide a chance for Egypt and its Soviet patron to weigh any new efforts to end the Middle East stalemate.

However, it was understood Nasser also would ask for more Russian arms and aid.

Man May View an Atom Soon

By RALPH DIGHTON AP Science Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) Man's age-old desire to see an atom may be fulfilled in a year

Two of the sharpest tools of modern science—the electron microscope and the computerhave been teamed up in a project to make this incredibly tiny building block of all matter visible for the first time

First goal of the project is to unlock the secret of genes, the living blueprints of heredity which may enable biologists someday to control evolution. If successful the same technique would tell physicists more about nuclear energy, the key to a long-promised Golden Age of almost limitless power. Electron microscopes, capable of magnifying 500,000 times compared with the 1,000-magnification of microscopes using light, have already probed deep into complex molecules, showing how each is made up of thousands of atoms. But the sharpest electron microscope image yet photographed does not quiet get down to the ultimate: the atom. Structures less than five atoms in diameter simply do not show up.

A technique for seeing better in the microcosmos of the very small is under study at the California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Dr. Robert Nathan, the scientist who worked out a way to use computers to improve spacecraft pictures of the moon and Mars, plans to link computers with electron microscopes and thus photograph a single

What we are doing now is studying the feasibility of such a technique." Nathan said in an interview, "building the hookups between the computer, the electron microscope and the

We expect to have much of this done in six months or so. and then we can get on with the proving of methods and actual research. It's always hard to say just how fast research will go but with luck we could be taking pictures of atoms in a

The reason optical microscopes can't see an atom is that light waves are too blunt. The distance from trough to crest. Nathan says, is about half a micron. A micron is a microscopic unit of measure in the metric system and there are one which is about 40 inches.

There is an even smaller unit of measure, known as the angstrom. An angstrom is one tenthousandth of a micron. Nathan figures the size of an atom as about one angstrom, so a light wave is thousands of times thicker than an atom. An atom couldn't begin to reflect anything as big as a light wave.

But electrons are different. They are parts of atoms—they are the energetic particles which whril around the nucleus a beam of electrons and so, puter. Then he instructs the theoretically, should be photographable by cameras sensitive to electrons instead of light.

Electron microscopes haven't vet been able to photograph an atom, Nathan says, because stains used to provide contrast between various structures in a molecule also cause distortion. The stain spreads among the atoms, blocking too many of the electrons and making the image fuzzy. If no stain were used, the true structure or at least the shape of the atom should become apparent. Some of the best electron images made so far are of genes, long strings of deoxyribonucleic acid. DNA, in the nucleus of cells and viruses. These strings are believed to be entwined in double-spiral form in living tissue but in laboratory tests they flatten out like chains of beads tossed on a dresser top.

The beads in the chain are believed to be atoms strung together in a coded sequence, or biological blueprint, which determines what functions each cell performs. The exact pattern of atoms along the chain has never been determined but Nathan hopes he can find a way to do just that with images sharp enough to show each single

Eventually this would help scientists trying to string atoms together artificially in such a way that they can direct the function of cells and thus control what a man will be and what his offspring will be.

'That's quite a way downstream, however." Nathan says Much sooner than that, I think will come an ability to control disease and aging. That's how I got into this research, through an interest in aging. Certainly the secret of disease and aging must lie in the individual cell and how well it functions, and a better look at the DNA which controls the cell will help."

He knows a great deal about computers, an interest he developed in trying to improve pictures televised by Ranger moon-impact vehicles in 1964.

Nathan saw that unwanted 'noise''-the scientists' word for static-was mingling with the signals from the spacecraft and distorting their pictures. He developed an intricate process using a computer to filter out

Here's how it works:

Signals from spacecraft cameras come in as numbers, with low numbers representing light shades of gray and higher numbers standing for darker shades

Nathan stores these numbers in sequence on magnetic tape of an atom. An atom can reflect and feeds the tape into a comcomputer to pick out streaks of dots which don't seem to belong in the picture and to raise or lower the dots' numbers to a shade which does seem to belong. This filters out the noise and the pictures become sharp-

In taking pictures of atoms, Nathan will tell the computer to be even more precise and to amplify or reduce the delicate variations in shadings that distinguish one atom from another.

Atlanta's Hitting Terror Not Doing So Well At Bat

Associated Press Sports Writer The All-Star voters, Hank Aaron said about his selection to the National League team, must have voted the first day of the

Aaron showed again Thursday why he made that quip.

Atlanta's erstwhile batting terror grounded into double plays his last two times at bat as the San Francisco Giants trimmed the Braves 6-4 and tied them for second place.

Aaron's lack of hitting has been evident all season. True, he has hit 15 home runs, second best in the league, and driven in 43 runs, sixth in the NL.

But a large portion of those RBI has not significantly aided the Atlanta attack, and he's hitting an incredibly low .231. That compares with his .316 lifetime average, tops among active players.

Still his fellow players voted him into the starting line-up for the All-Star game in Houston next Tuesday.

Against the Giants Thursday.

the 34-year-old Aaron singled in the fifth inning, stole second and scored on Joe Torre's single. But it was a different story each of the other four times he batted, especially the last two.

Coming to the plate in the seventh with Felipe Alou at first base, and the game tied 4-4. Aaron grounded a Frank Linzy pitch to shortstop Hal Lanier. who promptly turned it into a double play.

By the ninth inning the Braves were trailing 6-rn but they rallied and loaded the bases with one out on a walk to Mike Page and singles by Alou and Clete Boyer.

Up Supped Aaron needing only a single to tie the game. Instead he bounced back to Linzy, who flipped to Dick Dietz at the plate for one out, and Dietz fired to first for the final out.

In other NL games, St. Louis edged Los Angeles 3-2, Pittsburgh nipped New York 3-2 before losing 4-3, Philadelphia downed Chicago 7-4 after losing 6-2 and Cincinnati defeated

In the American, Detroit outslugged California 13-10, Baltimore edged Chicago 4-3 in 12 innings. Cleveland defeated Minnesota 6-3, Boston knocked off Oakland 7-2 and Washington trimmed New York 4-2.

While Linzy was stifling Aaron's bat, the Braves couldn't do anything with Dietz'. The Giant catcher drove in four runs with a two-run double in the first and a two-run homer in the seventh that snapped the 4-4 deadlock. Bobby Bonds contributed a tworun single to the Giants' attack.

Mike Shannon's two-run homer in the eighth broke a 1-1 tie and sent the league-leading Cardinals to their fourth straight victory over Los Angeles. Len Gabrielson made it close for the Dodgers with a homer in the bottom of the inning.

Eighth-inning doubles by Donn Clendenon and Bill Mazeroski carried Pittsburgh past New York in the first game and handed Jerry Koosman his fourth loss against 11 victories. Koosman drove in one of the Mets' runs with a single. Maury Wills stole three bases for the Pirates in the game.

The Mets came back in the nightcap behind Don Bosch, who socked a two-run homer in the third, then doubled and scored in the fifth, Cleon Jones added a homer for the Mets.

Billy Williams ended an 0-for-15 slump by igniting a three-run rally for Chicago in the fourth inning of the opener with a single and then homering in the fifth. Dick Nen hit a two-run homer for the Cubs in the Williams smashed a three-run homer in the second contest, but Philadelphia broke a 3-3 tie with four runs in the seventh. Doubles by Roberto Pena, Johnny Briggs and Clay Dalrymple powered the outburst. Jeff James got his first major league victory.

Alex Johnson and Mack Jones each drove in three runs in Cincinnati's victory over Houston. Johnson singled across one run and Jones two in the three-run uprising in the ninth that was

Tennis Pros May Demand More Money

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) The professional tennis stars, only partly successful at the first-ever open Wimbledon, may press for bigger prize money next year

George MacCall, the promoter who runs the National Tennis League, said its organization would have lost $20,000 by entering its stars in the Wimbledon tournament-even if they had cleaned up all the prize money. One of MacCall's stars, Australian Rod Laver, plays in today's final. None of the other five reached the quarter-finals. MacCall said: "We have to support Wimbledon, which is a symbol of world tennis. But we can't go on supporting Wimbledon at a loss.

MacCall reportedly has suggested that next year prize money should be distributed among professionals—and registered amateurs playing for prize money-according to the order in which they finish. At present, if an amateur wins the prize money goes back into the kitty.

The All-England Club, which runs the Wimbledon tournament, offered $62,400 in prize money altogether. At present, it looks as if almost half of it will not be paid out because amateurs did better than many of

In today's men's singles final Laver faced Tony Roche, another Australian who is a member of the rival "Handsome Eight" troupe. They are battling for a first prize of $4,800 with $3,120 going to the runnerup.

The two defeated semifinalists were American amateurs-Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., and Clark Graebner of New York-so the tournament officials saved a total of $3,600

There's also a 50-50 chance that the women's first prize of $1,800 will go back into the pot. The final will be played Sunday between the defending champion, Mrs. Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., who is under contract to MacCall and is going for the prize, and Australian amateur Judy Tegart, who is competing for expenses only.

Mrs. King overcame her old professional rival, Mrs. Ann Jones of Britain, 4-6, 7-5, 6-2

Miss Tegart upset United States Wightman Cup star Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex.,

In the National League, Chicago split a doubleheader with Philadelphia, winning 6-2 before losing 7-4. New York split a pair with Pittsburgh, taking the second game 4-3 after losing the opener 3-2, San Francisco whipped Atlanta 6-4, St. Louis edged Los Angeles 3-2 and Cincinnati defeated Houston 7-4.

The Angels scored four fast runs in the second inning with Mincher tagging his first homer and it looked like it might be a good day for Bill Rigney's club.

But the Tigers bounced right Horton leading the attack

Northrup had a two-run triple and Dick McAuliffe a two-run double in the big inning. Cash and Northrup hit consecutive homers in the sixth and Northrup slammed a two-run shot in the eighth.

The six homers tied a Detroit club record and gave the team 93 homers for the year-26 of them against California.

Brooks Robinson tagged a pair of homers for the Orioles but Baltimore didn't beat the White Sox until the 12th when

Dale Berning is a 6-handicap golfer who is in the real estate development business in Nevada. He was a one-man gallery Thursday as his wife charged around the tough, 6,232-yard Moselem Springs Golf Club course to gain a one-stroke lead over four-time national champion Mickey Wright

"We picked up a few people on the last six holes," said the 29-year-old Berning, "but most of the spectators appeared to be asking 'Who is Mrs. Berning?' and figuring she'd fold.

They apparently forgot that Mrs. Berning was the same Susie Maxwell who tied for second in last year's Open, two strokes behind winner Catherine La-Coste of France.

The 33-year-old Miss Wright, all-time leading money winner among distaff golfers, shot a 34-36-70 in her bid for an unprecedented fifth national title. She won in 1958, 1959, 1961 and

Another stroke back on the wings of a 36-35-71 round was Carol Mann, the leggy Towson, Md., lass who appears to have recovered from muscle spasm which hobbled her game.

Reliever Juan Pizarro drove in two runs and pitched one-hit ball for 6 2-3 innings, striking out seven, helping the Red Sox whip Oakland. Pizarro took over in the third for Jose Santiago, whose sore elbow forced him to retire. Santiago has been replaced on the All-Star team by Boston teammate Gary Bell.

Al Worthington's wild pitch allowed Cleveland's tie-breaking run to score and then Joe Azcue doubled two more runs across as the Indians dropped the Twins. Dean Chance was leading 3-2 going into the eighth but singles by Vern Fuller, Lee Maye and Russ Snyder tied the score. A wild pitch by reliever Ron Perranoski and an intentional walk to Lou Johnson set the stage for Worthington's wild pitch and Azcue's hit.

POLLY'S POINTERS Unmatched Earrings

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY-I am stuck with about 50 odd earrings. What can I do with a number of one-of-a-kind earrings?

DEAR POLLY-I am a retired window cleaner who worked at it for 30 years, so I ought to know the answer to Bobby's question on how to remove mineral stains from her windows. Put a dab of powdered pumice on a dry tray like a pie tin and have at hand a container of cold water. Wet a good-sized wash rag, dip it in the powdered pumice and scour until the rust is gone. Rinse well and then wash as usual.-CARL

DEAR POLLY-Do tell Bobby to use undiluted, distilled white vinegar for removing water stains on her windows. Soak a cloth with it and then rub. Warming the vinegar will make the job easier.-MRS. E. J. B.

DEAR POLLY-I first tried the following on a cracked glass pane to one of my French doors and it worked like a charm: I moistened a soap-filled steel wool pad, wet the glass with a cloth and scoured with the pad, going round and round with a small circular motion as I do on my ovenproof glass dishes. Make sure the glass is generously moistened to avoid scratching it. Also, the sudsy water that ran on the white painted wood made the rust stains disappear like magic.

USE WALNUT

MEAT

To Mall william aller by

As to her second problem of alcohol stains on dark wood furniture, such stains can often be removed by slicing a bit off the flat side of a walnut meat and rubbing this in a circular motion on the stain. Use another fresh nut meat if needed. When the stain disappears, polish the entire surface. The more stubborn the stain, the more elbow grease required.—MRS. M. G.

DEAR GIRLS-Perfume and beverages containing alcohol often dissolve the varnish or shellac on furniture and many times refinishing is necessary. Before giving up, you might try an old, accepted treatment. Rub the stain with powdered pumice and lemon oil which have been mixed to a paste. Apply with a soft cloth in a circular motion. Wipe off immediately with a cloth dampened with the lemon oil. Rub dry with a soft cloth and then use your polishing cloth.-

DEAR POLLY-After my oven mitts show signs of wear, I launder them, mend any torn places with iron-on tape and then use them for dusting my Venetian blinds. This is a timesaver and does save cuts and scratches from the edges of metal blinds. The dust can be shaken out and they are easily laundered when soiled.-MRS. W. J. B.

Wait-And-See Stage Entered By Players

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The strike—if there is one—of the National Football League Players Association now has reached the wait-and-see stage.

"Nobody is on strike now." veteran tackle Alex Karras said in Detroit

'We won't know until Sunday when San Francisco goes into camp if there's a strike at all.

"All of the players will be on strike if there is no settlement before next week.

John Gordy, president of the Players Association, is maintaining official silence, but scores of players have said they received telegrams from him ordering them not to report until negotiations can be worked out with the owners.

The only official comment since the break-up of a meeting between player representatives and an owners group last weekend came from Art Modell, NFL president.

He said the players had rejected the owner's offer, particularly in the area of improved pension benefits. They apparently agreed on most, if not all, other points.

San Francisco has the first camp opening—for rookies Sunday. Rookies are not members of the Players Association.

Nineteen veteran members of the 49ers, including Howard Mudd. Bruce Bosley. Ken Willard and Joe Cerne, said they would not report at that time

Veterans were scheduled to report the following week.

Detroit opens its rookie camp July 9, with Detroit and Green Bay scheduled the following day

San Francisco owner Lou Spadia, however, said he did not think a strike would take place. "I'm optimistic that it can be settled quickly," he said. Gordy, however, has declined comment on whether future talks between player representatives and owners are sched-

Share Lead In Second Buick Round

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) A couple of journeyman pros with only two PGA tournament victories between them shared the lead going into today's second round of the $125,000 Buck Open Golf Tournament. Rod Funseth of San Jose, Calif., and Butch Baird of Carlton Oakls, Calif., carved four-under-par 68s out of the long-playing 7,001-yard par-72 Warwick Hills Golf and Country Club course Thursday.

Bunched tightly one stroke off the pace were long-hitting Marty Fleckman, South African Harold Henning, Rod Horn of Overland Park, Kan., and Don Feirfield of Palm Springs, Calif.

Defending champion Julius Boros and U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino were with a group of 10 others two strokes behind the leaders.

Baird, a 31-year-old, nine-year veteran of the pro tour, had a chance to grab the lead on his closing hole but turned in his only bogey of the day to back into a tie with Funseth. Baird, who earned his way through college by working in Texas oil refineries, had sunk a breaking 18-foot birdie putt on his 17th hole to go five under par. But he three-putted the 415-yard, par-4 ninth closing hole for a bogey after his second shot luckily hit a tree and fell 65 feet from the cup.

Funseth, 35, in his eighth year on the tour, has been known as a long-hitting, but erratic, golf-

"I didn't lose my temper and started making a few putts,' said the soft-spoken Californian whose only victory came in the 1965 Phoenix Open

'My first rounds have been bad rounds but I've been in the money in the last four tournaments. I'm in a better position starting out this time.

Speed Is a Way of Life For Firecracker Winner

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — For William Caleb Yarborough speed is a way of life the normal, slow way of doing things just doesn't agree with this son of a South Carolina tobacco farmer.

Yarborough—just "Cale" to fans of late model stock car racing-fractured the auto racing record book Thursday when he breezed to a 167.247 miles an hour victory in an accident-free Firecracker 400.

That's about 14 miles an hour faster than it has ever been done before and eclipses alltime race records at Daytona and even Indianapolis.

Cale's reaction? A smile on his boyish face and a prediction that he'll snap the magic 190 m.p.h. mark in qualifying here next February if the rules aren't changed on him.

But it is not just at the wheel of his Mercury-which easily outpaces the two-engine plane Cale pilots—that Cale Yarborough dwells on speed.

The 29-year-old has a young dry cleaning business and even that sideline business pushes speed under the name "60-Minute Dry Cleaners.

gas tank and changes two tires in about 18 seconds, fast enough for Cale to turn the trick Thursday four times without giving away a lead or a lap. He was out front for 142 of the 160 laps. He has 1968 winnings of $96,781.

If being first has become a habit for Cale, being second is becoming almost as much of a habit for Lee Roy Yarbrough of Columbia, S.C.—no relation but driver of a Mercury that is twin to Cale's

Lee Roy was second at the Daytona 500 in February, the Atlanta 500 in April and again Thursday in the Firecracker 400 which Cale called "the easiest big race I've ever won.

Conjecture On All-Star Game Results

BOSTON (AP) — Manager Dick Williams of the Boston Red Sox is sure of only one thing when he leads the American League against the National League in the All-Star Game at Houston Tuesday night

Williams is certain he will have seven pitchers. What pitching condition they'll)be in only time will tell.

'We'll be well represented at Houston," Williams said Thursday after being told of a statement by Denny McLain of the Detroit Tigers.

McLain, the league's only 15game winner, said Wednesday night that the Detroit pitching rotation calls for him to go Sunday. He said if he pitches then he will be unable to pitch in the All-Star Game.

We'll make adjustments, I'm sure, but this is something I think should be handled by Mr.

Cronin's office," Williams said. He referred to AL President Joe Cronin, who was not available for comment.

Williams said that as of the moment Luis Tiant of Cleveland will be the starting pitcher. He added, "However, it all depends on who pitches Sunday, the type of games pitchers are in and how long they go.

Williams had to make a shift in his All-Star staff Thursday when his ace, Jose Santiago, had to leave a game with Oakland in the third inning because of tendonitis in the right elbow.

Britons Cross Over London Bridge Sale

By TOM A. CULLEN

European Staff Correspondent

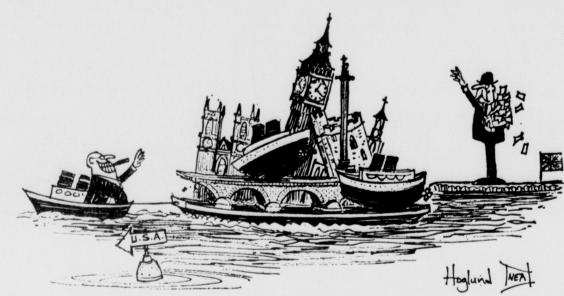

LONDON - (NEA) - With the sale of London Bridge to Arizona as a tourist attraction, America is rapidly becoming the custodian of British history, in the opinion of many here.

Everything from Cunard liners to Sir Christopher Wren churches has found its way to the shores of the New World in recent months, and not all Britons are happy about it. They feel that Britain is selling its birthright for a mess of Yankee dollars.

London Bridge, which inspired a famous nursery rhyme, has been sold for $2.46 million to the McCulloch Oil Corp., which plans to re-erect it at Lake Havasu City, Ariz. (pop. 4,000), as a tourist Dismantling of the historic bridge is already under way. Each of its 12,000 pieces is being numbered prior to being shipped via Long Beach, Calif., to Lake Havasu, where they will be reassembled like a giant jigsaw puzzle.

Dismayed at the fate meted out to London Bridge, cynics here are wondering which of London's remaining landmarks will be knocked down next to go to the highest for use as a combination hotel American bidder. Will it be and oceanarium. More re-Westminster Abbey, Nelson's Column, or the Tower of London, which houses the Crown

The more flippant will tell you that the Houses of Parliament were sold to the United States when Britain became the 51st American state.

Those who grumble that America is swallowing up Britain's heritage claim that the rot started a few years back when a Sir Christopher Wren church was dismantled here and shipped to Fulton, Mo. The chapel was then reerected on Missouri soil as a monument to Sir Winston Churchill.

This was followed by the sale in July, 1967, of the Queen Mary to Long Beach, Calif.. cently, its sister ship, the Queen Elizabeth, was sold for $7.75 million to a group of Philadelphia businessmen, who plan to convert it into a combination hotel, restaurant and convention center.

These two queens were once the sovereigns of the Atlantic, holding the blue ribbon for speed. "They should have been kept in this country as reminders of British engineering skill," complains a bartender who, admittedly, has never set foot on either liner. "This way, we will have nothing left to show our children."

The same complaint is made concerning British antiques and works of art that find their way into American homes: It would be better if they gathered dust in attics here. (An export license is now required before shipping abroad any antique over 100 years old and valued at more than $4,800, which rather limits the art drain.)

The old nursery jingle about "London Bridge is falling down" is as well-known in America as it is here. Banking on its pulling power, Lake Havasu is expecting its tourist trade to increase by 500 per cent once London Bridge is reassembled in its new

Meanwhile, the city engineer's office here has been deluged with requests from America for chunks of granite from the bridge to decorate mantel-pieces as souvenirs. Most of the requests are backed by hard cash and have given rise to a thriving fringe

The London Bridge which is being dismantled was built in 1831 and is only one of many bridges that have spanned the Thames at the present site, the earliest having been built by the Romans in A.D. 50.

In 1014, King Olaf of Norway pulled London Bridge down with grappling irons while Britons poured boiling oil on the heads of his soldiers. Olaf returned to Norway boasting, "I have pulled-London Bridge down, it has fallen." That is the origin of the nursery jingle.

The present London Bridge is not falling down but sinking at the rate of one inch every eight years, owing to its tremendous weight (130,-000 tons) and the traffic vibration. Also, it is too narrow to cope with the 20,000 pedestrians and 2,750 vehicles that cross it every hour. It will be replaced by a $10 million, six-lane bridge, due to be com-pleted in 1971.

Not all Britons are sorry to see the old London Bridge go to Arizona. "America is a young country and venerates antiques, whereas Britain has too many of them," a keeper at the British Museum explains. "So what is one monument more or less among friends? We've got plenty more where that one came

It's true. Under our bill consolidation plan, we take all those burdensome money payments such as medical obligations, department store accounts or furniture bills and completely pay them off!

When your consolidation plan is worked out, you'll have just one monthly check to write. And here's the big news. This one check can be nearly one-half of your current monthly payments!

French Banker Criticizes U.S. Economic Policies

By TOM A. CULLEN

European Staff Correspondent

may regard them as gangsters robbing Fort Knox of its gold, but personally I find French bankers to be friendly, courteous, full of old world

Take Albin Chalandon, president of the Commercial Bank of Paris, for example. Still in his early forties, Chalandon is tall, handsome, married to the Princess Salome Murat. He is an expert mountaineer, goes skiing every weekend that he has free.

But, more important, Chalandon has the ear of President de Gaulle on financial matters, being called in frequently to advise him on fiscal policy.

The young banker was first treasurer, then general secretary of De Gaulle's party, the Union for a New Republic, until 1959, when he was forced to give up his political post in order to concentrate on banking affairs.

My only quarrel with Chalandon is that he is inclined to be a bit preachy. Recently, in his e'egant banking quarters near the Etoile, he lectured me for over an hour on what is wrong with the United States and how she should put her economic affairs in order.

This is a far cry from postwar days when France was the sick man of Europe, and America was called in to cure her. In those days only Marshall Plan aid kept French democracy affoat. But an American who comes abroad these days soon gets accustomed to being lectured. The tables have turned with a vengeance.

"The eyes of Europe will be on the American Congress in coming weeks to see what the Congressmen do about the balance of payments deficit," Chalandon begins. "If Congress does not increase taxes, and take other steps to curb inflation, the gold rush will start all over again."

PARIS—(NEA)—Wall street would like to see the dollar balance of payments deficit, devalued—"That would be disastrous," he maintains-but he would like to see gold become the world's reserve currency, instead of dollars and sterling, and he, of course, welcomes a free market in about gold, as he did on television not long ago, his eyes become dreamy, and a sensuous quality creeps into his

Chalandon also takes the view, now fashionable in Gaullist circles, that American investment in Europe constitutes a menace. "In the immediate postwar period American investment was a good thing, because it helped Europe to get back onto its feet," he admits grudgingly.

"But later we have come to realize that U.S. investment Chalandon denies that he in Europe equals exactly the which means that we have been paying for America to buy us up.

The banker's friendly exterior suddenly becomes tough when he speaks of the reprisals that would follow any American move to impose a compensatory tax on imports. Also, if the United States required American subsidiaries in France to repatriate part of their profits a new situation would arise, Chalandon de-

"We would find ourselves back to the 1930s, when every country erected tariff walls against her neighbors, and that is the very thing the United States has been trying to avoid.'

Like many Frenchmen whose business interests require them to have an international outlook, Chalandon displays a peculiar love-hate attitude towards the United

For example, he made himself late for his next appointment in order to question me about American hostility towards France. "Why do Americans hate us?" he asked, showing genuine concern. When it is explained that American hostility is directed towards President de Gaulle, and not the French people, Chalandon still looks unconvinced. Politics should be about principles, and not personalities, he maintains.

In conclusion, Chalandon believes that Europe is in for a period of severe deflation, and that unemployment in France, now around the 500,000 mark, will increase as French industry trims to fighting form. The paradox is that as a banker I have always believed in credit," he says. "But now I have become convinced that credit is a bad thing.

Orders to Shoot Given By Maddox, Says Book

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Gov. Lester Maddox ordered state troopers during the funeral ers as an unauthorized biogramarch for Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. to "shoot them down and stack them up," if marchers attempted to enter Georgia's capitol building, according to a just-published biography of

The book is entitled "The Riddle of Lester Maddox." It was written by Bruce Galphin, an editorial associate for the Atlanta Constitution, and published by Camelot Publishing Co. of

According to the book, Maddox issued the order to approximately 200 armed troopers and other law enforcement officers who patrolled the capitol grounds and corridors during the massive march of mourn-

The estimated 200,000 marchers passed directly in front of the capitol, which Maddox had refused to close.

Maddox, questioned about the published report, acknowledged that he issued an order to prevent marchers from entering the capitol and said he "could have" used the language attributed to him in the book.

The governor said he had received information that an attempt would be made to storm the capitol building during the march, and that he had given the order as a precaution.

Maddox denied, however, that he threatened to bring state forces into Atlanta to protect his Pickrick furniture store against a possible fire bomb attack after the murder of King.

Galphin says in his book that Maddox told Atlanta Mayor Ivan Allen Jr. the store had been threatened, and if the city did not provide protection state forces would "stack 'em up like cordwood."

The governor said he did not say that. He said he did receive threats about the store, and reported them to the city in the usual manner.

Lewis-Clark Trail Traced By Scouts

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Scouts from 22 Explorer and Boy Scout Councils from Missouri to the West Coast are retracing the Lewis and Clark Trail first blazed in 1804.

The trek is part of the official reopening of the Lewis and Clark Trail. Ceremonies marking the reopening were held at the St. Louis waterfront as part of an annual July 4th celebra-

Following the ceremony the youths boarded a riverboat provided by the Army Corps of Engineers to begin retracing the route.

Firemen Handy

LOS LUNAS, N.M. (AP) — A float in the Los Lunas Fourth of July parade was set on fire by a thrown firecracker Thursday. But a fire department truck and its crew, which also was in the parade, dous the blaze.

Why Should OUR Son Have a Newspaper Route?

The living is good. Plenty of money, nice home, nice furnishings, another salary raise in sight; we've never had it so good. Why should our son manage a newspaper route?

Most any educator or businessman will tell you why in three simple words; it builds character.

Oftentimes the youngster who grows up in comfortable circumstances and who gets his weekly "handout" from dad never realizes the value of money or the efforts required to make it and manage it, until he's on his own. By then attitudes and habits are difficult to reverse.

But the newspaperboy quickly learns valuable lessons that stick. While making money on a newspaper route is important, the experience of getting-the-job-done-no-matter-what is more important. When through route management, responsibility and self-confidence are acquired at this early age, a newspaperboy has an advantage over other youngsters that no amount of money can buy.

HOLLYWOOD-(NEA)-It was more like a picnic-a church picnic, at that-than a movie set.

On the Universal back lot, producer Ed Montagne and director Alan Rafkin were guiding Andy Griffith, Lee Meriwether and Gary Collins through a crucial scene in "An Angel In My Pocket." Andy plays a minister in this one, and his church was burning down.

With carefully-controlled flame, it all looked very real. On signal, the fire roaredshooting out windows, climbing the walls, spilling through the roof. Andy and Gary and a young actor named Richard Van Fleet were trying to stop it—according to the script—with a garden hose and a shovel.

Between each take, the three fire fighters slumped down on the grass and relaxed. During one such slump, Lee Meriwether noticed that the hair on Andy's hand was singed. She said he ought to put something on it, some burn ointment or something.

"No," Andy said. "I hate anything on my hands. It's almost a phobia with me. I don't wear a wedding band or a wrist watch for that reason. Drives me crazy to have anything on my hands."

Writers Jim Fritzell and Everett Greenbaum, two funny men with a great capacity for amusing each other, dropped around to see how it was going. They created the character Andy plays and have retained ownership of it. There was talk about a television series for Andy, based on it. "Maybe," said Ev Green-baum. "It would make a good half-hour series—if half-hour series make a comeback."

The actors went out for another go at the fire, then came back again for more talk. The talk got around to Don Knotts. They all knew Don and exchanged Don Knotts stories. The best was Andy's tale of the time Don met Cary Grant, the actor he most admired and had been Finally, one day in the Universal commissary, somebody introduced them.

A NATIVE OF THE BIBLE BELT, Andy Griffith of Mt. Airy, N.C., finds himself behind a pulpit in "Angel in My Pocket," in which he portrays a minister.

Said Don Knotts to his hero: "How're they treating you, Cary?"

Then Gary Collins' wife, Mary Ann Mobley, came by to have lunch with her husband. Lee Meriwether, who had been the only beauty around, took mock umbrage at this gorgeous invader.

"No pretty girls on the set," said Lee.

Director Alan Rafkin, a sly one, said, "I'll let you know if a pretty girl shows up," and Mary Ann hit him on the arm.

Mary Ann was bubbling. She's expecting her first child in October and could think of nothing else. She was full of resolve about how she was going to communicate with her child.

"My own teen years were unhappy," she said. "I couldn't communicate with my parents very well. I was the public waterworks. Everybody was dating but memy father wouldn't let me.'

They had one more go at the fire. Andy got too close and burned his hand slightly. Van Fleet was burned on his arms and legs and they took him to the studio hospital for treatment. Rafkin called a lunch

Tables were set up in the grass. Everybody sat down and one bench-carrying the writers and Lee Meriwetherwas on soft ground and sank slowly. It didn't stop them from eating or talking

"I try to see every good movie or play that comes along," said Ev Greenbaum. 'A writer has to give so much of himself that he needs to refuel, to put something back."

"I don't see anything when I work," Andy said. "I just go home and go to bed. Fortunately, I can rest-I have two well-behaved dogs, some wellbehaved kids and a well-behaved wife."

Warwick Seeks Own Film Role

By BOB THOMAS AP Movie-Television Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Latest of a long line of vocalists to seek acting careers is Dionne Warwick, the satin-voiced beauty who is one of the nation's top

She follows a longtime tradition. Since early talkies, pop singers have been enlisted for acting duties, and many of them turned into expert performers: Bing Crosby, Judy Garland, Betty Grable, Frank Sinatra, Doris Day, etc., etc.

record sellers.

Sinatra once proferred an explanation of why so many of his craft succeeded as actors: "We got our training by acting on the bandstand. It was a challenge to make each lyric believable, and some of the lyrics we had to sing were mighty challenging!"

Dionne Warwick has been selling lyrics in remarkable style for six years. Born in East Orange, N.J., she learned singing from the soul early-as part of a family gospel group called the Drinkard Singers. She and a sister and two cousins formed another group called the Gospel-

By the time she branched out as a single, she possessed the skill and believability to sell such melancholy numbers as "You'll Never Get to Heaven" and "Walk On By," her first record hits. With musical material and guidance supplied by the talented Burt Bacharach, she ascended into top rank as a record, night club and concert attraction.

Now comes a new career. She is starring with Stephen Boyd and Ossie Davis in "The Slave," an 1850 drama of the South, to be filmed in Shreveport, La. Miss Warwick visited here briefly before reporting to the location, and she talked about the assignment.

"I always thought about doing everything in show business,' she remarked, "and the two things left for me were movies and a Broadway show. So when 'The Slave' came up, I was eager for it.

She will do no songs in the film, in which she portrays a slave who becomes the mistress of Boyd.

LBJ Set To Give 'Siesta'

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson, launched on a long work-play holiday weekend, is giving this Latin-oriented southern Texas area one of its biggest July 4th fiestas.

Prefacing a summit conference in El Salvador with presidents of five Central American nations, Johnson brought some 40 ambassadors and their ladies to San Antonio Wednesday for a full round of Independence Day festivities at the city's Hemis-Fair and environs

On Wednesday evening, the President and Mrs. Johnson joined the ambassadors-most of them from south of the border-at the 1,400-acre ranch of Texas Gov. John Connally.

The Connally spread, near Floresville, 35 miles south of here, was opened to the Johnsons and the diplomatic visitors for an informal dinner, cocktails and an evening of Western and Spanish-American music, all served up on the back lawn under clusters of live oak trees.

Connally, a longtime political ally of Johnson's, has been mentioned as a possible Democratic nominee for vice president. And Johnson certainly did not grab the public spotlight from him during the initial hours, at least, of the holiday.

States is making a persistent effort in the Paris peace talks to convince North Vietnam that American forces will be withdrawn from South Vietnam as rapidly as possible after a peace settlement.

Busy Shipping Season at Hand

By Steve Bredwell Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

This is the time of the year when area farmers are bringing wheat to grain elevators for shipping, and Veulemans Elevator in Otterville is in the midst of buying grain from growers and shipping it by rail to its various destinations.

Jack Veuleman, Syracuse, owner of the elevator, is in his third year at the business and said this should prove to be a very good year for volumn in wheat. All of the grain at Veulemans Elevator is shipped by rail. Last year 56 carloads of wheat were shipped from the elevator and so far this year 30 carloads of wheat have been moved out.

Veuleman said an increase should be registered this year even though farm wheat allotments have been cut back 10 per cent.

This year Veuleman is using an area of about 15 miles, also expects good returns when corn, milo and soybeans are brought in for shipment. Last fall about 100 carloads of this type of grain were shipped from the elevator.

Also operated by Veuleman in Otterville is a fertilizer blending plant. Last year about 47 carloads of various types of fertilizer were railed out of Otterville from the plant.

According to J. Richardson, Wooldridge, agent for the Missouri Pacific Railroad at Otterville, the grain elevator is one of the main contributors to the railway business in the Otterville area. Another main business which uses the railroad to a large extent is the Bixler Gas his grain. In the past regular Company in Otterville.

Witch-Hunting Just a Bad Memory

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON - On the Fourth of July, 1951, the New Orleans Item and the Madison Capital Times sent reporters through crowds celebrating the founding of the Republic, asking them to sign unidentified copies of the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights. In Wisconsin 111 out of 112 refused to sign. In Louisiana 24 out of

Most of those who read the documents declared them Communist or radical or even suggested the FBI should investigate their authors. Some said they Department seems fearful of congressional had relatives in the government and didn't want to be mixed up with anything subversive.

This was at the height of the Joe McCarthy era during which the late Senator from Wisconsin had bullyragged witnesses until a lot of people believed McCarthy's charge that the State Department was riddled with Communists.

Today things have changed - somewhat though we could be on the verge of another Joe McCarthy era.

In Montana last week I found that the old witchhunting atmosphere of six years ago had evaporated. In 1962, when I spoke at Montana State University its president, Roland Renne, was under attack because the Board of Regents had asked him to fire 22 professors as pro-Communist.

"They were my best professors," President Renne told me. "One of them had been guilty only of telling students that the governments of Norway and Sweden - which were labor governments were efficient.'

President Renne refused to fire the professors, and today the atmosphere which he battled has been dissipated. Nobody now worries about Communist professors

-Some Fears Linger-

"I was one of those 22 professors Renne was asked to fire," says Dr. Leon Johnson, who has now taken Renne's place as president of Montana State University.

In Montana also, then Vice President Richard Nixon, speaking in Helena in 1954, boasted that he had removed the Pentagon security clearance of Dr. Edward Condon, former director of the Bureau of Standards, who left that job after Nixon's un-American Activities Committee hounded him. Condon's chief crime was talking to a Yugoslav diplomat at a cocktail party. He devised the nose cone for American satellites which enabled the United States to penetrate outer space. Today the Air Force, forgetting Mr. Nixon's witch-hunt, has entrusted Dr. Condon with the very important study of UFOs - flying saucers.

Elsewhere in the nation the Joe McCarthy fear of Communists under neighbors' beds has pretty well evaporated. A courageous, persistent president has recently won some breakthroughs with Soviet Russia toward peace. He has finally overcome such

Many congressmen, however, seem convulsed with fear - or else use it as an excuse to oppose most-favored-nation treaties with the newly emerging countries or Czechoslovakia and Romania. Czechoslovakia has thrown off the hard-core Communist government which long held sway there, while Romania has been most helpful to us in the UN and with North Vietnam. However, the State

Men like John Carter Vincent, John Paton Davies and Jack Service were excoriated by Joe McCarthy because when serving in China with Gen. George Marshall, then Ambassador, they concurred in his conclusion that Communist China was something to be reckoned with and that we should not cut all ties with Peking.

-Exit The Experts-

Dean Acheson, Truman's Secretary of State, refused to bow to McCarthy. But John Foster Dulles, who followed him, ran for the storm cellar.

All the Far Eastern experts were purged. They were not around in 1954 to warn Eisenhower against following the advice of the late Cardinal Spellman of New York to send troops and heavy aid to puppet President Diem of South Vietnam. Nor were they around in September 1961 to warn President Kennedy against escalating our troop strength.

Nor were they around in late 1964 to warn President Johnson not to adopt the recommendations of Barry Goldwater to escalate

It will take some years for historians properly to evaluate the effects of Joe McCarthyism on our State Department and the amount of blood and treasure it has cost the American people.

Today, despite the wholesome change in most parts of the country, a few McCarthy clouds of fear are blowing up on the horizon.

In California, Max Rafferty, the rabid right-wing school superintendent, pounded on Joe McCarthy's fear psychosis so long and so effectively that he defeated a liberal Republican, Sen. Tom Kuchel for the Senate. His chief campaign issue: "The Communists are mass murderers. We continue to see our friends murdered and our women ravaged by sneering packs of punks.

And in Alabama, ex-Gov. George Wallace has been banging the desk over Godless Communism with such Hitleresque harangues that some people are beginning to look under their beds again.'

To hear Rafferty and Wallace talk you would think we were all in danger of being invaded or subverted or taken over by Godless hordes hiding inside the government or in the universities.

When an effective haranguer gets wide television exposure there is always danger. Crowds can be like sheep. They were like sheep in Germany in the 1930s when Hitler came to power and like sheep in Italy in the 1920s when Mussolini came to power. They were like sheep when newspapermen circulated copies of the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights to Fourth of July crowds in 1951. They could be like sheep again today.

TV Cleanup for Real?

The television industry has turned into one giant dry-cleaning shop in efforts to rid its product of the deep-dyed stains of violence.

Even as scissors snip scenes and cameras reshoot episodes, some voices are heard to murmur that this is but a passing attitude and mayhem unabridged will shortly be back on the home tubes.

A public accustomed to being vicariously burned, shot, gassed, hanged, stabbed, buried alive, garroted and you-name-it 365 evenings a year can scarcely be blamed for viewing the announced cleanup with jaundiced eyes.

It remains for television to prove whether this is merely a temporary rein on content or a genuine revision of intent in "entertaining" its vast audience.

Another Birthday---And Getting Younger All the Time

Rockefeller Swings Sledge Skill Deserves At Nixon as Time Runs Out Lucky Break

By BRUCE BIOSSAT NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) The word from inside Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's camp is that in the summer weeks just ahead he will be swinging harder and harder at Richard Nixon in a desperation effort to overtake him.

Rockefeller's street rally speech in Chicago on Vietnam was so strong in accusing Nixon of hard-line war advocacy that it seemed reminiscent of his 1964 campaign assaults on Barry Goldwater. More of the same is in prospect.

On top of this, the governor intends to try again and again to suggest that much of Nixon's overwhelming southern delegate support-which represents well over a third of his indicated convention vote potential-has a white racist orienta-

He gained an opening on this score, of course, when former Georgia Congressman Howard (Bo) Callaway, Nixon's southern regional co-ordinator, said that Alabama's George Wallace was the sort of man who belongs in the Republican party. If these two criticisms of Nixon are hammered as steadily as is presently planned, the net of it will be to suggest loudly not only to Republicans but to the whole electorate that the former vice president's feet are planted in concrete on the two most perplexing issues of the day-war and racial strife. For Rockefeller there is a painful irony in resort to this strategy of open attack upon Nixon. Not the least of the wounds he bears from his unsuccessful presidential bid in 1964 are those inflicted by the common charge of conservative Republicans that he was a "party-wrecker" who supplied the Democrats with much of their fall campaign ammunition against Goldwater. Talks with Rockefeller's aides in the months before he entered the 1968 race indicated that the "wrecker" charge was one they surely never wanted to hear again. When he and they spoke of his possible candidacy as "divisive," they had this old complaint very much in mind. Yet they have now chosen to hit out at Nixon with nearly the same force that was delivered against Goldwater in the critical primaries of 1964. That Rockefeller's campaign has taken this militant turn is a measure of its considerable failure to date.

No compelling evidence exists that his direct appeals to convention delegates, however plausible and impressive they may be, are moving significant numbers of Nixon-leaners into his own smaller delegate column. Off the evidence of his recent face-the-people efforts in such cities as Chicago and Cleveland, it has to be said that Rockefeller is not building any big bonfires to scorch the backsides of delegates who are soft for Nixon but still clinging to him.

His Kennedy-type hold on Negroes, Puerto Ricans and some other minorities may be real enough, but not even the most urgent exertions of his highly professional cadres are managing to produce the huge crowds he needs.

His situation might be even worse were it not for the fact that here and there his crowd totals are being overstated, and television compounds the error by showing film clips that portray him as absolutely engulfed by happy supporters.

A truer gauge of his distant position behind Nixon can be had from the fact that Rockefeller managers are almost openly soliciting counsel from any quarter whatsoever on what to do to catch up. That they have gone back to the hard assaults of 1964 as at least a partial answer is strong testimony that imaginative new approaches are sadly lacking as time begins to run out for the governor.

The race is not always to the swift nor the battle to the strong, but somehow or other the swift and the strong seem to come out on top more often.

It also holds that the best play does not always win but does so more often than other kinds.

South did not know how to bid his hand. An optimist might just bid six with it on the theory that six might well make opposite a blank North hand. A pessimist might settle for four on the theory that a bid of five might well get his partner to bid an impossible six.

Thirty-five years ago when he was one of our best young players, John Rau of New York would have bid six spades all by himself. He is less optimistic today and only went as far as five spades, whereupon his partner decided that the singleton club. doubleton trump and two kings warranted a slam bid.

Needless to say, John would have given all of that up for one queen of trumps but you play with what you've got. He won the diamond lead; cashed his ace of clubs; ruffed a club to get to dummy and led dummy's last spade. East played low and John went up with his king. When this dropped West's queen the hand was over.

There were a few comments about luck from East and West and, of course, Johnny was lucky, but he had made the best play and was entitled to some luck.

Why was Johnny's play the best available? If spades were 2-2 his play would win if West held the queen and East the ace. The jack play would win if the ace and queen were reversed. Thus, against a 2-2break the king and jack plays were equal. If they broke 3-1 there was no way for the jack play to succeed. Even if it forced a singleton ace there would be no way for the play to pick up the queen. On the other hand, if West did hold the singleton queen, the king play would be a winner. That little extra chance was enough.

McCarthy at Peace Talks Could Sap U.S. Efforts

By LEON DENNEN NEA Foreign News Analyst

NEW YORK (NEA)

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, Democratic presidential candidate, says he will fly to Paris in late July to meet with the North Vietnamese delegates to the peace talks.

"It might be a good thing for me, as a presidential candidate, to speak directly to them," the senator said. "I would like to find out what the possibilities for some kind of settlement or accommodation

But what can McCarthy learn "directly" from Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's chief spokesman, that has possibly eluded a seasoned diplomat like W. Averell Harriman, President Johnson's representative in Paris? Or does the senator mean to imply that the American negotiators are not zealous enough in their pursuit of peace?

McCarthy undoubtedly acts from good will and not politics but his intervention in the tortuous negotiations can only make the task of the American diplomats more difficult. Since he has made it absolutely clear - even before the negotiations were under way - that he favored the formation of a coalition government with the Communists in South Vietnam, his meddling will only encourage Hanoi's pro-Chinese diehards.

A coalition government which will eventually enable them to seize power in Saigon is precisely what the Communists hope to gain from protracted negotiations. It would be the victory that was denied them on the battlefield.

Though the North Vietnamese demand substantial concessions from the United States, they are unwilling to reciprocate the good faith of President Johnson. They rejected Vice President Hubert Humphrey's appeal for an immediate cease-fire.

They seek, as Johnson warned, "to use the talks to see if the United States could be pressured to stop the bombing completely in the southern panhandle of North Vietnam without any compensatory action on their part."

Skeptical Western observers insisted from the very beginning that Hanoi's original aim in engaging in the talks has been to gain time to repair the damages inflicted by many months of American aerial bombardment. As they see it, the Communists are interested only in regrouping their forces for a new war effort in South Vietnam.

So far the skeptics have been right. New information from Hanoi reveals the existence of a strong pro-Chinese faction within the North Vietnamese leadership. Led by Truong Chinh, former secretary of the Communist party, this faction seeks to exploit the Paris talks as a facade and diversion while escalating This does not mean that Truong Chinh, despite Red China's backing, will overwhelm the more are ostensibly backed by Soviet Russia. In North Vietnam, as in the United States, there is a deep division between doves and hawks. However, there is hardly any doubt that McCarthy's direct approach to Hanoi - especially in view of his strong advocacy of a coalition government - will be interpreted by the pro-moderate forces of Ho Chi Minh and Le Duan which Chinese diehards as a sign of American weakness. McCarthy, like most Americans, wants a speedy end to the tragic conflict in Southeast Asia. It is his right and duty as a senator and presidential candidate to evaluate and criticize Johnson's policies. His flying trip to Paris may even add luster to his image as a man of peace.

But let us have no illusions about the Communists. Now, as always, their aim is to win at the negotiating table what they were unable to attain through terror.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Hot Drink is Effective As a Summertime Cooler

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

A tall, cold drink to refresh you on a hot day will have just the opposite effect, according to Dr. L. C. Senay Jr. This is because the rate of sweating nature's own device for cooling your skin - is temporarily reduced until the temperature of your cold drink has been raised to 98.6 degrees or higher.

In one experiment, three volunteers underwent a period of dehydration, then drank a solution of the salinity of the body fluids at body temperature and later at a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees. In each case, drinking the warm drink was accompanied by a secretion of sweat that was more than ample to keep the body temperature from rising but drinking the cold drink caused it to rise.

My advice — drink your iced tea if you prefer, but don't expect it to cool you off as well as a cup of hot

Q— What is Indocin used for?

A — Indomethacin (Indocin) is given to relieve the pain and inflammatory reaction in persons with various types of arthritis. It does not belong to the cortisone group of drugs.

Q - Can Indocin be taken indefinitely for arthritis? Does it have any bad side effects, especially regarding glaucoma? Is it a cure or is it given to control the arthritic symptoms?

A - This powerful drug may be taken for prolonged periods but only under careful medical supervision. Its side effects, when too large a dose is given, include headache, dizziness, nausea, diarrhea, mental confusion and asthmatic attacks. There are no reports that it will aggravate glaucoma. Although it is not a cure, it does give welcome symptomatic

Q — What are histamine shots given for? How long should one take them?

A - A small amount of histamine is sometimes injected into the skin to test the adequacy of the arterial circulation. A histamine injection may also be given to test the ability of the stomach to produce acid. I suspect, however, that the shots you are referring to are the antihistamine shots used to treat hay fever and other allergies. The number of injections and duration of the treatment must be determined by your doctor.

Penny in Bird Bath Prevents Algae Growth

DEAR POLLY-If Marion's outdoor ceramic bird bath is thoroughly scrubbed with a 10-cent store suede brush and rinsed with plenty of clean water, algae will not collect and permanently stain the finish. In summer it may be necessary to do this every 10 days or two weeks.-MRS. M. A.

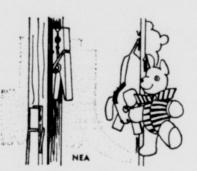

Polly's note—Try a small spot to see if the wire brush scratches the finish on your bath before proceeding further.

DEAR POLLY-You can prevent the growth of algae in your bird bath by putting some copper in the water. This may be done by just keeping a copper penny in the water. -FRANK

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I am only 26, but during the last several months have noticed that I am getting a double chin. For four years I have been working at a job where I sit, lean my head downward and type all day. I imagine this contributed to my problem. I am not overweight. Do you know of anything that would help other than the use of a chin strap and throat cream? -JOHNETTE

DEAR POLLY-I used to have that never-ending problem of where to keep stuffed toys until my handyman husband came up with the idea of a "Toy Tree." He used a piece of one-inchsquare wood the height of the bedroom and glued clip clothespins vertically on the pole in a zigzag fashion. He painted the pole white and the clothespins red. We have had many compliments on our "Toy Tree," which takes up no floor space.—MRS. G. H.

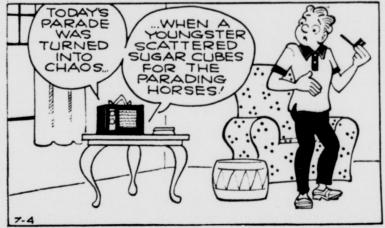

DEAR POLLY-If your child's stuffed animals are constantly in the way, here is a solution: Get a curtain ring for each animal and sew them to the animals. Put picture hooks on the wall and hang the toys on the hooks, by the rings, after planning an effective arrangement.—ERIN
